Bert Green Fine Art is pleased to present solo shows by LA based husband and wife artists Jeff Gillette and Laurie Hassold.

Jeff Gillette's Art History Shacks explore a post-apocalyptic, worst case future scenario where some of contemporary western culture's most important artists' works have degenerated into the trash in a landfill and the architectural building materials of a typical third-world shanty. Accompanying the paintings are a series of unique "iLandfill" prints showcasing popular culture's most iconic cartoon characters in an endless e-waste landfill.

Laurie Hassold derives inspiration from the awe-inspiring forces of nature: avalanches, earthquakes and geologic formations looming large at a scale that is clearly not human. Her sculptures examine a possible post-human evolution assembled from fossilized remains and the detritus of our disposable culture.
